

C19Science.info Webpage: Science and It's Importance

Before explaining why they happened, let's be clear about some of the disastrous — and entirely preventable — US consequences of the mishandling of COVID-19:

- Hundreds of thousands of Americans are needlessly dying,
- Our economy is being undermined, with Trillions of dollars being wasted, and
- We are lurching towards Communism, as dozens of hard fought for liberties and civil rights are being extracted.

But haven't we been dealing with a disease of unprecedented historical proportions?

NO! See this visual comparison of prior pandemics — and be aware that this graphic is based on an inflated death toll for COVID-19. (For example, the reported COVID-19 deaths don't distinguish between those who died from COVID-19 from those who died with COVID-19 — a VERY big deal!)

The question now is: have we learned our lesson here, or does it have to get even worse before we woke up? The lesson to be learned comes from understanding how this tragedy came about... (Then peruse the numerous reports, etc. listed here.)

The term “Science” is bandied about continuously. The obvious reason why is that when a product or agenda is officially endorsed by “Science,” it’s like getting the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval.

The problem is that 95%+ of the public (including legislators), have almost no idea what “Science” actually is. This leaves the stage open to a wide-variety of bad actors to step in and make false Science claims — knowing that very few will be aware of the deceit. Fewer yet will have the knowledge, time and/or commitment to publicly challenge these inaccurate Science assertions.

As a professional scientist for 50+ years, let me try to clarify some of the confusion. The best definition for Science is: Science is a Process, and the most recognized Science process is the Scientific Method.

Once we’ve grasped that, it’s then critically important to understand that Science exists for one reason: to give us objective, competent assistance in solving our technical problems (e.g., like COVID-19).

Because of this powerful influence, there is a wide range of Science wanna-be’s. However, if we are paying careful attention, we can discard the pretenders when we see that they do NOT follow scientific protocol.

Today, the biggest threat to real Science is political science. (Of course, having the word “Science” in the phrase is the first part of the deception.) Political science is actually just politics — but with a fancy name to make it sound more legitimate. Don’t be fooled.

We are being bombarded with numerous “politically correct” products (e.g., industrial wind energy) and agendas (e.g., climate change), parading about as if they are proven by Science. They are not!

So, it’s no surprise that COVID-19 policies have fallen prey to this anti-science (and anti-American) scourge. The bottom line is that self-serving parties will continue to use a strategy as long as it works. We need to expose the deviations from real Science in ALL of our technical policies — but here our focus is on COVID-19.

On the C19Science.info webpage are some reports that should help you separate the wheat from the chaff. The first group are my small efforts at trying to educate the public about the charade we’ve found ourselves in.

The second collection are some of the better materials I've come across from other parties. This isn't an exhaustive list, but if you absorb what is here, you'll be very knowledgeable about the unscientificness of most current COVID-19 policies.

One would think that as the guardians of their profession, that the Medical Establishment (FDA, CDC, WHO, AMA, NIH) would aggressively be defending their field from science pretenders. Unfortunately, regarding COVID-19, the Medical Establishment has become a part of the problem, rather than a part of the solution. That's what my first report outlines.

[Note: we are not including medical practitioners in the definition of the Medical Establishment. By-and-large they are also victims of the Medical Establishment's departure from Science.]

The second report spells out the most egregious failing of the Medical Establishment regarding COVID-19: that they failed to advocate any science-based therapies, when there were several reasonable options — any of which were superior to doing nothing. (Note that each of my two Reports has over a hundred citations!)

Feel free to pass on any suggestions for improvements of any of my documents (additions, deletions or modifications). Please provide the scientific basis for any corrections.
